ALL RISE

There was no shortage of glitz and glamour at the third annual Le Grand Bal Masquerade. Masked women in ball gowns and men in black tie mingled and dined at the Fermenting Cellar in Toronto, where the room had the theme of sophisticated illusion, complete with holographic video and elegant black-and-silver décor. Guests' attention turned to the stage when Dylan Ber, 11, sang "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" and received a standing ovation, the first of the evening. The next came when Bruce Rivers, executive director of Covenant House Toronto, revealed that the Rogers Foundation had donated $1 million to support the charity's anti-trafficking initiatives. Honorary chair Suzanne Rogers and her husband, Edward, were both clearly thrilled to be paying it forward. — ANNA REDMAN
